

VILLA NOVA

— PRESS RELEASE —

A Tribal Gathering

This season Villa Nova presents four new collections that evoke a rustic handcrafted feel. This launch features hand printed and loosely painted motifs translated into prints that cleverly retain the authenticity of the original artwork, alongside tribal inspired weaves and embroideries. The feature collections are complimented by two versatile plains, presented in a modern, earthy colour palette.

Villa Nova will be exhibiting at London Design Week, March 2018 at design Centre Chelsea Harbour in the newly remodelled Romo Group showroom, and will be available globally through an extensive network of selected interior designers and retail outlets.

HUARI

Prints, Weaves and Embroideries

The Huari collection embraces a blend of African, native Central and South American influences to embody a sense of global tribalism. The collection is awash with geometric shapes with hand painted and naive sensibilities, capturing a rustic luxury with a dose of free-spiritedness.

HUARI WEAVES

Decorative Upholstery Weaves

Huari Weaves are an expressive and textural collection of small-scale weaves featuring interlocking geometric shapes combined with organic and intricate textures that draw inspiration from simple patterns found in naive tribal arts and crafts. These five stylish and tactile weaves are suitable for upholstery and drapes in a colour palette that is designed to sit with Huari prints, weaves and embroideries.
